Conditional Admission

The Texas A&M University-Kingsville may offer a student a conditional admission if he or she is an international student who requires English Language instruction before he or she can begin their Degree Program. Applicants who meet all admission requirements except the English requirement can be offered conditional admission. If you are conditionally admitted, you will attend the English Language Training Center (ELTC) to study English in an intensive environment. An applicant who is offered English Conditional Admission may obtain full admission into an academic program upon successfully completed ELTC program (Please see English Language Proficiency Requirements for Undergraduate applicants at <http://www.tamuk.edu/admission> and Graduate applicants at <http://www.tamuk.edu/grad/admissions>).

If you intend to earn full admission, you must apply for Intensive English for Academic Purposes and study in the English Language Training Center at Texas A&M University-Kingsville. The program will issue an I-20 which you will use to apply for an F-1 visa for your English studies. A conditionally admitted student should communicate with the Office of International Student and Scholar Services (OISSS) when submitting other application materials.
